The latter, however, does fixing the date as Jan. 16 and lanot manage this in person, but leaves dianapolis as the place. The call specifies that the delegates will be emissary, generally an intimate elected by direct vote of local lodges, and that a delegate for each 100 members will be allowed. The members are asked to instruct their delegates how to vote on the proposition to ian railroad laborers have been sleep change the official organ, the United ing. Mine Worker, from a weekly to a monthly publication. Secretary Wilson in his annual report recommended the change, but a committee on officers' reports nonconcurred in his recommendation.

Indiana leaders in the organization and those at national headquarters at Indianapolis discredit the story from the east that John Mitchell will decline a re-election as president. Some operators and others conjecture that he will resign because, as they say, the organization has reached its climax and that like other labor organizations which grew rapidly in numerical strength it is bound to lose strength, not to the point of disruption, but to a considerable extent.

WHEAT MARKET IS STILL STEADY

New, York Market Letter Tells of the Canditions in the > East. New York, Nov. 21, '04.

Dear Sir:-WHEAT:-The wheat market last week, while showing several intervals of firmness, lost ground on the whole and closed at a decline of from 31/2 to 5 cents, with May showing the liquidation following the result of better crop reports from the Argentine and the Southwest, and a slow demand for flour, in connection with full Russian shipments and a good Increase in the world's stocks for the Grading has shown no appreciative improvement. But the speculative interest in December appears to interest in December appears to have been very considerably reduced, and the question of grading has become one as to which shorts may procrastinate. Sentiment in many quarters is against the market, however, and on all such weak intervals as were experienced at times this week it seems as if a short interest was accumulated that covers on the first bullish news, while it is also evident that certain very important western interests are using the mar ket as medium for scalping, and the alternating pressure and support from this source would naturally promote irregularity. In our opinion wheat a sale on all bulges. The most recent news reports from the Far East have indicated the probability of a continued struggle, but Port Ar thur is being pressed very assiduously by, the "Japs," and its fall, in the ext month or so, seems quite essential to their success. The continuance of the war is not a bullish factor at these prices; but its end yould certainly cause a temporary Corn:-Corn has declined in sym-

The United States Geological Survey has just published the voluminous treatise on metamorphism by President Chas, R. Van Hise of the University of Wisconsin. The work which covers the entire field of the alteration of rocks is the result of spring from the English Jockey club over twenty years of study and research, and Dr. Van Hise has devoted the last seven years to complet-ing this volume. As Dr. Van Hise undertakes to show that the ore deposits are produced by metamorphic processes, his treatment of the subject is of great importance to mining interests which depend upon the location and extent of deposits of ore Course in Music for School Teachers In response to the demand of the Wisconsin public schools for teachers who can give instruction in music as well as in other branches, and also for supervisors of music in the grade and high schools, the School of Music at the University of Wisconsin will give special courses in the methods of instruction in music for the public schols, beginning De-cember 1st of the present year. Mr. Berman T. Owen, formerly of Boston, who has made a special study of the teaching of music in the schools will give two courses in this work ,one of which is intended for those who wish to teach musle in connection with the regular branches, and one which is designed for those who wish to become supervisors of

The winter term of the Dairy School of the University of Wisconsin has opened with an attendance of 125 students. As the arrangements of the school were planned for about 100 students, the school is crowded and it has been necessary to transfer the lectures to the new Agricultural Building. The work of the school, which continues for twelve weeks, includes creamery butter making, factory cheese making, labora tory milk testing, and shop work with dairy machinery. A party of Swiss cheese makers from Green county is attending the school this—year to take advantage of the instructions in foreign cheese making which the Dairy school now offers.

GRAND ARMY MEN HAVE A MEETING

William H. Sargent Post Enjoy ar Evening with Colonel

Weissert. A very enjoyable time was had last night at the Grand Army post hall. It was a regular meeting with an extra attraction for the old veterans. G. Welssert, past commander-inchief of the Grand Army of the Re-public, of Milwaukee, was present, and delivered a very eloquent address of an hour's duration. The hall was comfortably well filled. Besides the er Moseley, W. H. Grinnell, depart-ment chief of staff and senior aide de camp and others were present from Beloit. After the business of the post was dispensed with, Com-mander Robert Scott asked Major Cobb to preside. As a starter "Marching Through Georgia" was sung, led by Asst. Adit. Gen. Kimberley. The chair then asked J. F. Carle in a few remarks to welcome the distin-guished guests. Certainly no one else was better able. Gen. Weissert was a member of the Eagle regiment, popular. 8th infantry, and paid a glowing trib ute to W. H. Sargent of the same regiment, for whom this post was named. The speaker told of a conversation on the ground where Sargent fell, and where he (Weissert) was soon after pierced with a rebel bullet, and confined for some time at a hospital hovering between life and death. He spoke kindly of Col. Britton, his old colonel, and of many others here who he knew were doing all in their power to keep up an in-terest in the post. S. C. Cobb was the first post commander and E. G. Harlow the first and best adjutant the post ever had. His relations to these and other comrades in Janes ville were very close and he congratulated all having the honor of be-longing to this aplendid post, Gon. Welssert gave a very interesting account of the present condition in the Philippine islands as gleaned from one officer stationed there for some months. After the close of his spiendid address "America" was sung and the presiding officer called for a ten minute recess for a smoke. Called to order again, Commander L. Moseley of Beloit spoke feelingly to the old fellows for five minutes, as did Grinnell. These comrades from the Line city together with all mem-bers of the post there, are always welcome in W. H. With big fields in nearly every event during an afternoon the demand for riders of skill far exceeds the supply. There are only three or four American jockeys that may be classed as

The remainder, in the parlance of the track, are only "third raters" and "dubs." None of the present riders compares with Sloane in ability. When at the zenith of his fame he was in a class by himself. Soveral horse owners who in the past were eager to secure Sloane's services are now anxious to obtain them again. During the season just closed these men lost several valuable stakes by the blundering work of their riders, and they are seeking riders of known ability on whom they can rely.

A prominent owner whose father at one time was the most noted and popular patron of the turf in America recently had a long talk with Sloane on the subject of obtaining a license for him. This horseman, it was learned, agreed to do his best to have the English Jockey club extend its favors to Sloane. As this young turfman is a multimillionaire and his father ruced extensively abroad for several years, horsemen believe that the English stewards will grant his request par-ticularly as no charges of fraud have ever been made against Sloane.

It is nearly three years since Sleane had his license revoked as a jockey in England. At the time his permission to ride was rescinded Sloane was the premier jockey of Europe. Tod was then traveling with a lot of worldwise young men and during a dinner became involved in a dispute with a ofter and, it was charged, hit him over the head with a wine bottle.

This incident, greatly exaggerated perhaps, caused a lot of talk detrimental to American turf interests abroad, and he soon had his liconse withdrawn. As the French and Amerlean Jockey clubs will not grant a liceuse to a rider when once his application has been rejected by the English turf authorities. Sloane has since been debarred from riding in the three great countries where horse racing is

WHO IS GOLF CHAMPION?

Englishmen Advance Novel Argument to Steal America's Glory. Englishmen are ingeniously declaring that a Britisher is now golf champion of the world. They figure it in this wise:

The American champion won the British championship. Then the western champion defeated the Joint holder of those titles. Afterward the for mer Canadian champion captured the Olympic championship by beating the American and western champton, who had previously defeated the British champion. Later the former intercollegiate champion, now holder of the American and western titles, was again defeated in the college contest.

All of which moves Crafts Higgins to inquire, "Does not this combination of victories make the Olympic champion, Lyons of Toronto, the actual amateur champion of the world?"

THY SCOTT WITH Dolph and Adolph"

Ayers, South America, shortly became the blot of the South Americans. Returning to Italy her fame had reached Maurice Gran, and he made a special lourney from New York to Milan, Italy to hear her sing. The result was a five year contract at an enormous salary for the Grau company at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York. At the conclusion of her New York contract, Mme. Mantelli made a tour of the principal cities of Europe, with Sig. Tamanga, winning fresh laurels in Paris, Berlin, Vlenna, St. Petersburg and else Three years ago she returned to Lisbon to sing at the San Carlos where she had won first laurels when but a mere girl. Her triumph in "Carmen" and other operas was enormous. On this occasion she was decorated by the King of Portugal. Mms. Mantelli is not only a great singer-she is a most charming and cultivated young woman, speaking almost as easily as her native Italian four other languages, French, German English and Spanish, and singing her roles in them all.

"Laugh, and the world laughs with you" is as potent and powerful an epigram as when first uttered. Even the seething swirl of an election campaign cannot down it for the speaker who makes his audiences laugh is the one who achieves the greatest popular esteem; so it fall with theatrical performances. When the seasan's theatrical race has been run the judges invariably say "The farce comedy has it" thereby indicating first finish in popular favor. The well-known musical melange "Rudolph & Adolph" of Broadhurst & Currle that will be seen at the My-ers Grand in the near future has had this blue ribbon of success planed upon it for three seasons past and starts in the present season with the hall mark of appreval of both public and press. The story of the play is simple and uninvolvent and much of the fun hangs upon the question of mistaken indentity.

CHAPTER XXII.

Unreasoning Passion.

In all the vast world only two persons knew that such a man as John Burt lived-James Blake and Peter Burt.

John Burt owned stock in thousands of miles of railroads. He was an investor in other great enterprises and activities. An army of men worked under his direction, and the stock market rose and fell at the pressure of his unseen hand. For years he had rebelled at the fate which had made him a recluse, which denied him the fellowship and confidence of his peers. He felt a keen joy over the knowledge that the day was approaching when he could assume his true place in the world of vast affairs.

But of earth's countless millions there was one above all others to whom he wished to tell his secret. He impatiently awaited the time when he could look into Jessie Carden's face and read the verdict in her eyer. Were years of patient waiting and working to be rewarded or unrequit-

Blake arrived at his office at an unusually early hour on the morning following his introduction to Jessie Carden. He had spent a miserable night. No sleep came to his bloodshot eyes, and for hours he restlessly paced the floor.

"I love her; my God, how I love her, but I also love John!" he exclaimed again and again, as the night hours crawled slowly away. "What shall I do; what can I do? I cannot give her up. By God, I'll not give her up for any man; not even for John Burt! Would John surrender the woman he loved for me? What am I to do? I must decide before I see him. If I tell John she is in New York he will see her inside of twentyfour hours. That will be the end of my hopes. She shall love me! She must love me! I cannot live without her! Oh, why did I ever see her!"

In this unequal contest between loyalty and passion in a weak and gelf-indulgent nature, passion won the battle, but at a frightful sacrifice. His judgment warned him that he was doomed to defeat, but with the frenzied desperation of a gambler he staked everything-honor, friendship, loyalty, his business career-all on the turn of a card, and dared to meet John Burt with treachery in his heart and a lie on his lips.

Blake knew that John Burt was in his private office, but for the first time in his life he hesitated to enter it. Prosperity had erected no wall of formality between these two, From the day they fought their hoyish battle, on the edge of the fishing pool, they had called each other "John" and "Jim." In tacitly accepting John Burt's leadership, Blake recognized in his companion those traits which attract allegiance, and which hold it by unseen but powerful bands, By a display of tact which amounted to genius, John Burt had alded James biake without patronizing him, and had forgiven his repeated mistakes without affending him.

Blake strolled slowly through the connecting offices and entered the large room reserved for customers. Those who knew the famous operator bowed respectfully. Blake gazed minaedly at a bulletin board containing the early London and Paris quotations. He read there-but they

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL. Few People Know How Useful It Is In Preserving Health And

Beauty. Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier innature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleasing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of, it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries the most the sys-

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit,

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to vise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but Prople Report. daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drpgstores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I

"Who is that gentleman?" asked a smooth-cheeked and dapper young man, who had embarked on his first speculative venture by risking the major part of his quarterly allow-

"Why, don't you know?" exclaimed his companion. "I should have introduced you. That's James Blake-the famous and only James Blake. Five years ago he didn't have a dollar. Twenty millions in five years is his record? And it hasn't enlarged his hat in the least. He tells a good story, sings a good song, and no man In the club can drink him under the table."

The moment for action had arrived for James Blake. He compressed his lips, strode through the room and a moment later entered John's office. In the final struggle passion was triumphant, and he nerved himself as best he could for the ordeal.

John Burt looked up. The haggard expression on Blake's face alarmed

"What's happened, Jim? You're pale as a ghost!" "it's a tooth," said Blake, rubbing his hand tenderly over his face, "I'm all right now, but it gave me a bad right. The dentist drew it this morn ing. I dined with General Carden.

suppose "Has Jessie returned? Did you see her. Jim?"

"Miss Carden has not returned, but she is expected to sail next Tuesday," said Blake, nervously lighting a clgar. "I had hoped to bring you better news, John, but this is the best I can do. I thought it would be indelicate to ask General Carden for her address, since nothing but a cablegram could reach her before the sailing date."

A shade of disappointment passed over John Burt's face when Blake ter's great knowledge of escaping from spoke, but a smile chased it away when he mentioned the time of her departure.

"You did right, Jim," he exclaimed. Let's see: Tuesday is the thirteenth. I'm glad Jessie isn't superstitions. That should bring her to mer bicycle rider, who eclipsed Burney New York on the twentieth. That's Oldfield's one mile automobile record thirteen days from now."

Blake turned ashen when the secend thirteen was announced, but John's eyes were fixed on the innocent calendar, his thoughts were four thousand miles across a heaving these daredevil drivers has been keen ocean, and he didn't notice the superstitious agony imprinted on the holds the present record it is his amother's face.

John Burt leaned back in his chair and half closed his eyes.

"Two weeks, lacking a day," ho mused aloud. "There is a long-standing account I should like to settle before Jessie returns," he said, turning to Blake, who had partly regained Lis composuré, "What is it?" asked Blake, with a lively show of interest.

"The elder Morris ruined General Carden as deliberately as ever one man did another," declared John Hurt, his deep gray eyes flashing a menace as he brought his hand to during the winter. the desk with a blow which made it "The proceeds of that villainy have been turned over to his are training for their fight in San con. "Thursday," answered Blake.

"I shall not wait for Hawkins," said John Burt, abruptly. "He owns a block of this L. & O. stock and I shall assume that I have his co-opcration. I shall have control of L. & O. before he reaches New York. How did it close last night?"

"Twenty-eight and a half," replied Blake.

"It opens to-day at a quarter," said John Burt, standing over the ticker. "Take all offerings up to thirty, but do not force matters. You understand, Jim? Watch it closely and keep me advised." "I understand," said Blake, as he arose to go. "Walt a minute," called John, as the other stood by the door. "Sam Rounds was in to see you yesterday, was he not?" "Yes."

"Send for him at once. Tell him it's something important. 'That's all." Blake entered his own office and flung himself into a chair. He felt as If he had aged years in the hour that had passed.

I have recently had a number of reports from various localities where people are suffering with smallpox, and I have been asked to give instructions for a simple and safe preventive treatment as well as method of nursing which will successfully overcome the dangers good. It will not even moisten the outof the disease and avoid the terribly dis-

Iguring pox marks. Without saying anything in regard to the merits or demerits of vaccination, further than that I do not approve of it as a preventive from contagion, I will proceed to describe the Home Health begin to make their appearance, just club method for securing the desired results.

As I before stated, it is the simplest thing in the world to render children. and older people as well, immune against smallpox and at the same time wonderfully increase, instead of deplete, the store of vitality. I have had much gar, or dilute acetic acid-for they are with water, and is good vinegar, but is nsually too strong for table use.

Now you ask: "Where do you get your authority for using a cheap, homely remedy that even the poorest readers of your literature can secure?" I answer: 'Go with me in imagination back 1900 years, and watch the Good Samaritan, of whom St. Luke tells, and we find that when the priest and the Levite passed by the wounded man he "went to him and bound up his wounds, pouring in oil and wine"-and we at once decide that this good itinerant knew something of the laws of nature. vinegar of anything that could be obtained: in fact, hereafter, some of my wealthy readers will probably use champagne instead of common vinegar when desiring to ward off disease or heal a wound; but they must remember that internally. Pure acetic acid, diluted to the proper strength, and called vinegar, is one of the most valuable remedies to be found ant in the practice of hydrotherapy. The judicious use of acid and oil, together dren's diseases; and even smallpox loses understood and practiced.

Smallpox is essentially a disease of filth-not that every person who ever had it is necessarily unclean, but they contracted it by coming in contact with adhered. Even though you may have been exposed to the disease, prompt and energetic measures will prevent an attack.

The first thing to do will be to remove all the clothing and at once sponge every portion of the hody with the acid, diluted until it is just strong enough to cause a slight smarting. Follow this with a thorough inunction of the oil, and put on clean clothing from head to foot; not a single piece of that the papers which follow. previously worn is to be put on again until sterilized—hat, shoes, necktle gloves, coat and topcoat, as well as all underclothing. Any one of them may contain the virus which might infect : whole neighborhood where sanitary conditions did not exist. After the acid bath the person is chemically clean, and unless polson has lodged in an abraded spot on the skin, and already found its way into the blood, there need be no apprehension of evil; the discase will not appear from that exposure. Then, if the entire body is thus treated about every other day you can pass with impunity through the midst of the most violent epidemic and fear no evil. The acid of vinegar neutralizes the poison of smallpox almost instantly. Cleanliness, plenty of fresh mir, and pure, wholesome diet are the essentials in seeking to avoid the pest.

But, says one: "Suppose that a person has been exposed by riding in a street car, and knows nothing of it: what is to be done in such a case?" Well, as I have just said, if there are reports of smallpox near you, it is a very simple thing to make yourself chemicalally clean two or three times, a week. Change your clothes for fresh ones a little more frequently than usual; watch your diet and drink, and you will be all right. But if you find a neighbor who has not taken these precautions, and you are satisfied that he is coming down with smallpox, prompt, energetic measures are necessary.

The same treatment which you have found described elsewhere in these columns, to be used in the preliminary treatment of all cases of fever, must be promptly and energetically used. But in this case a fire has been started within the body, and rages fearfully in spite of the cold applications, and all that it is possible to do is to control it. It is true it may continue for days, but, instead of remaining there, as it does in many cases, you can lower it to 100 degrees, and keep it at or below that point, thus not only affording continuous relief to the patient but reducing to the minimum the danger of fatal termination. The development of the case, and the degree of outer manifestations to follow, will be largely determined by the amount of heat allowed to exist in the early stages. Now, for the stage of the disease in which repulsive exudation takes place. of flour. Boll once and pour over the In some cases the pitting, or sores, be- raisnips.—Boston Globa come so terrible that it is almost impos sible even to look at the sufferer, and the fearful, offensive discharge is of such a corrosive nature that it literally cats way not only the skin, but portions of the muscular tissue, leaving the body scarred and disfigured for life. All this * may be easily changed by applying a remedy that will counteract the corroeive substances-and here again our acid is found to be the most valuable agent to use. Plenty of fresh alr, cleanliness, and, in this case, a darkened room heated to a temperature of not more than 65 degrees Fahrenheit, with neld-and few, if any, marks of pitting will remain to tell the story of suffering.

There must, however, be no half-way, half-hearted, perfunctory use of the remedy, if we wish to counteract the effect of the corrosive matter discharged. The acid must be scaked into the pimples until it is felt reaching the sensitive nerves that lie under them, or little or no good will be accomplished. For instance, we find a large portion of the skin covered with a scab of dried humor. A thin cloth is dipped in vinegar, and laid over the spot; of course it does no er part of the crust. If any kind of eintment has been smeared over the parts to relieve the itching, it prevents the acid from reaching the innermost parts of the coating and the end sought is thus frustrated. But as soon as the pimples soak them with vinegar, and get the acid fairly into them-in fact, through them, and into the tissues beyond. First one spot and then another must be thoroughly soaked, again and again, not attempting to cover too large a surface at one time, and going over each little postule slowly and steadily, neither overdo to say of the antiseptic power of vine- ing nor underdoing, but using care and good judgment. After a considerable one and the same thing. The so-called surface has been thus treated, if there white wine vinegar is acetic acid diluted is any smarting sensation, or tendency to feel chilly, follow the sonking of each pimple with a little fine almond oil, and there will come a wonderful ease and comfort tolthe tormented sufferer.

There is no danger in using oil, for as soon as the exanthema appear the fever almost invariably ceases. Suppuration commonly begins about the fourth day after the first appearance of the eruption, when the fever is again liable to rise, with accompanying headache and suffering, in which case the oil must be dispensed with. As will be seen, the person who nurses a smallpox patient has Gipe for the murder of Mollie Star a long job, and one requiring constant The wine was probably the most like attention; but, with patience, she is sure acter. Is my case serious? Respectfully yours, B. S. J.

The trouble is caused by poor circulation and insufficient activity of the glands. Elimination of waste matter is insufficient, some of the infusions of good old-fashioned herb remedies would be of value, the gentlan compound and others of that nature. Lemon Pumpkin Pie.

One quart of pumpkin, one quart of sweet milk, four eggs, one tablespoonful of butter, four teacupfuls of sugar and the juice of one lemon; grate the lemon first, as the essential oil and flavor are in the yellow part of the aromatic rind, then express the juice, mixing thoroughly, so all of the pumpkin will get the flavor and acidity. Lemons differ. The large California lemons are frequently so dry that two will be required, for there must be one tablespoonful of the juice. Limes season as well as lemons. Three limes will give as much acid juice as two lemons.-People's Home Journal.
